Core Solutions works with families whose teen's behaviors and choices are putting their future, and possibly even their lives at-risk. These are good kids, with good hearts, but who have gotten off-track and are headed down a destructive path. Unwilling to give up on them, their parents are searching for answers that will alter their dangerous trajectory.

As that parent, how much would it mean to you to see your teen's confidence and self-worth expand as they become accountable for their choices, achieve academic success, benefit from positive peer influence, and begin to heal family relationships?

You have the power to make a difference in your teen's life. Help them start creating their own success story. Contact us today. We can help.
